

AURORA PRESENTS: THE HISTORICAL ARCHIVES COLLECTION

Vintage charm and style

The Aurora Historical Archives collection includes an elegant series of original productions from the 1950s. With their unique designs, enriched by precious details and valuable trims, these pens, preserved and authenticated directly by the Turin-based pen company, have a timeless elegance.

This vintage collection revives all the appeal of the fashions of those years: traces of pearlescence in the silver, the use of bows as precious details, the gold brought to life in refined patterns. With their soft, delicate design, this collection rediscovers the charm of understated elegance, to which it adds a romantic hint of glamour.

The pens feature the original mechanism of the time. All are in perfect working order and have been tested by expert artisan craftsmen at the historical pen factory in Turin. Classic and distinctive, this collection reflects the traditional Aurora style. All items come with a certificate of authenticity and guarantee as proof that they are original productions.

Of the different lines available, all stand out for their distinctive stylistic elements: the caps are made more precious by the drop pattern on the clip and feature a simple, clear-cut design.

The fountain pens have a solid gold hooded nib. The ladies' versions of the ballpoint pens are decorated with a fine cotton bow. This original and unusual detail gives these writing instruments an extra touch of grace and elegance. The refined square, lined and elliptical guilloché patterns enrich the precious materials used, such as gold and silver.

These details reflect the historical transformations that characterised Italy in the 1950s: the country was starting to show a keen interest for innovation and technology, a passion for precious objects and creative design. Detail and luxury were the subject of particular attention, and are clearly echoed in the Aurora Historical Archives collection.

This attention to detail is also reflected in the special presentation boxes, made of leather with precious trims, that embody and mirror the indisputable taste and class of those years.
